Intellectual property (IP) is a category of property that includes intangible creations of the human intellect. The main purpose of intellectual property law is to encourage the creation of a wide variety of intellectual goods. To achieve this, the law gives people and businesses property rights to the information and intellectual goods they create, usually for a limited period of time. This gives economic incentive for their creation, because it allows people to profit from the information and intellectual goods they create. These economic incentives are expected to stimulate innovation and contribute to the technological progress of countries, which depends on the extent of protection granted to innovators.

The intangible nature of intellectual property presents difficulties when compared with traditional property like land or goods. Unlike traditional property, intellectual property is "indivisible" – an unlimited number of people can "consume" an intellectual good without it being depleted.

The program included the introduction of the speaker by Dr Radhika Rai, Followed by the expert talk. Following the lecture, the speaker was felicitated with University memento by Shri Rajiv Khanna, Director, Faculty of Law.

The session was very interactive and the faculty members asked lot of questions to resolve their queries.
